Mission and Values of the Company

Mission

At Goodrose Support Coordination, our mission is to make the complex simple. We empower NDIS participants to confidently navigate their plans, build their capacity, and connect with the right supports. Guided by positive psychology, we focus on strengths, resilience, and practical solutions, helping every participant move closer to living their best life.

Values

At Goodrose, our work is driven by four core values: Service First, Accountability, Capacity Building, and Progress Tracking. These guide everything we do, from the way we engage with participants to the way we collaborate with providers.

We value efficiency and professionalism—making sure every interaction is purposeful, timely, and clear. We believe in working alongside participants, not just for them, so they always feel heard, respected, and in control of their journey.

Our team also embraces a strengths-based and solution-focused approach. By drawing on each participant's unique abilities and aspirations, we foster resilience, build confidence, and support meaningful progress. Above all, we value people—participants, families, providers, and our own team—because together, we create positive change.

Forms & Services

Goodrose will always explain any forms or services being given to you so that you can make an informed choice with a full understanding of what is being provided to you. You have the right to refuse to sign or have an independent support person to assist you with making this informed choice.

Freedom of Information

As a participant, you are entitled to request access to your information at any time. If you would like to access your information, please provide a written request to hello@goodrose.com.au

Disability advocacy is acting, speaking or writing to promote, protect and defend the human rights of people with disability. The Australian Government, and some state and territory governments, fund independent advocacy to help people with disability who face complex challenges or are unable to advocate for themselves, and do not have family, friends or peers who can support them as informal advocates, to access advocacy support. An independent advocate, in relation to a person with disability, means a person who:

- a) is independent of the organisations providing supports or services to the person with disability; and
- b) provides independent advocacy for the person with disability, to assist the person with disability to exercise choice and control and to have their voice heard in matters that affect them, the NDIS does not approve a support coordinator being an advocate; and
- c) acts at the direction of the person with disability, reflecting the person with disability's expressed wishes, will, preferences and rights; and
- d) is free of relevant conflicts of interest

Checking in on your experience

At Goodrose, your voice matters. To make sure you're happy with your support and that we're meeting your needs, we occasionally send out short text messages asking for feedback. This is our way of checking in to ensure your coordinator is providing the quality service you deserve.

These check-ins are a great opportunity to:

- Share what's working well
- Raise any concerns or questions
- Make a complaint if something isn't right
- Let us know if you'd like to swap to a different coordinator

We understand that the fit between a participant and their coordinator is very important. If you ever feel that your coordinator isn't the right match, we are more than happy to assign you a new one. Sometimes it takes a little trial and error to find the best fit—and that's perfectly okay.

Our goal is to make sure you always feel comfortable, supported, and confident with the person coordinating your NDIS journey.

Your Support Coordinator or Recovery Coach

At Goodrose Support Coordination, we know that having the right support coordinator makes a big difference in your NDIS journey.

Who Your Coordinator Is

Your support coordinator is a trusted professional who works alongside you to help you understand, implement, and make the most of your NDIS plan. Coordinators are chosen for their knowledge of the NDIS, their experience in working with people who have disability, and their ability to listen, problem-solve, and advocate for you.

Every coordinator on our team brings their own strengths, but all share the same commitment: to support you with respect, reliability, and care.

How Your Coordinator Is Chosen

When choosing a coordinator, look at your goals, needs, and communication style. You want to match with someone who understands your situation and is the right fit for you.

We believe that a good match makes coordination easier, smoother, and more successful.

Special Characteristics of Our Coordinators

Our coordinators are:

- Knowledgeable about the NDIS, community services, and mental health supports.
- Empathetic and respectful, taking time to listen and understand your story.
- Problem-solvers, skilled at untangling challenges and finding creative solutions.
- Reliable and professional, committed to working in partnership with you.

What to Expect – “Life Happens”

This is really important, we know that sometimes life takes unexpected turns. Coordinators may move on, take leave, or be unable to continue in their role. This can be really disruptive, which is why we use the dual coordinator method.

To make sure you are never left without help, we assign two coordinators to every participant:

- A main coordinator – your primary contact, who leads your support.
- A backup coordinator – someone you will also meet, who knows your situation and can step in whenever needed.

This means that if your main coordinator goes on holiday, takes leave, or has an unexpected emergency, your backup coordinator can continue your coordination without delay.

This is our way of mitigating risk and ensuring continuity of service, so you can feel confident that you will always have someone supporting you.

Thank You
